ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This research endeavour has been an effort to understand the relationship between the empowerment of secondary school teachers and their perceived leadership qualities. It has reconfirmed the belief that there is a correlation between teacher empowerment and perceived leadership qualities.

I owe a debt of gratitude to my research guide, Dr. Pradnya Wakpainjan who has served as my mentor throughout my entire research process. Thank you, for your optimism and knowledge about conducting research. Thank you, for your ability to make me think critically and always question the world and myself. Without your guidance, support and friendship this research would have been impossible.

My thanks are also due to the principals of different schools, teachers who participated in this research. I appreciate your willingness to allow me to conduct this research in your schools. Your supportive gifts of your time and resources to conduct this research clearly indicate your dedication to growth and development of your schools.

To my parents, thank you for your support and for instilling a work ethic and a level of confidence in me so that I could accomplish this goal.

To my husband Ketan, special thanks for always being there in so many ways to encourage me through this process. I would like to dedicate this thesis to my daughter Aarti, whose source of inspiration helped me to fulfill this dream.
To, Dr. M. Kesarkar, I/C. Head, Department of Education, S. N. D. T. University, thank you for your constant motivation and guidance in this research journey.

There are many people who have helped me every step of the way. Their encouragement and support is appreciated. To, Rekha Chauhan, Assistant Professor, Department of Education S. N. D. T. University, thank you, for helping me in this research process. I would like to extend my special thanks to Neesha Malik, my dear friend who helped me when most needed.

To the Almighty, I am grateful for HIS steadfast love and support, manifested through many people who collaborated with me, and has been the corner stone of this research endeavour.
